TYPHOID FOUND IN THREE WELLS

Sources of Infection Discovered at East Great Plain—Stable Well at Fair Grounds, Pierson Well and Harris Well Contain Bacilli—All Will Be Pumped Out and Cleaned.

Reports received from the state laboratory by Dr. George Thompson, the town health officer, of samples of water taken from the well at the New London county fair grounds near the stables, from the well on the Pierson farm on the New London county turnpike and the G. W. Harris well there, state that all three are infected with typhoid fever germs. It is known that Harold L. Pierson drank from the Harris well and from the fair ground well mentioned, so that it is probable that there were the source of infection from which he contracted the fever.
A hundred or more people drank from the fair grounds well during the three days of the fair, a large number of Norwich people and those from the surrounding country have been exposed to typhoid infection.

The search to locate the possible sources of typhoid infection in the Pierson case began in the middle of August, when some interested people called on Dr. D. J. Shahan, city milk inspector, to ask if it might not be possible to locate the infection through some milk supply. Dr. Shahan at once told them that the typhoid bacilli could not be found in milk but he took immediate steps to get samples of water from the East Great Plains district, after learning where young Pierson had drunk, and the first place he went to was the well mentioned at the fair grounds. On Aug. 16 Dr. Shahan secured samples here and also at the Pierson farm and the Harris farm and a hundred or more people drank from Main street. The next morning he also secured samples of water from thirteen wells in the Oxbow and Gardner Lake district.

All were expressed to the state bacteriological laboratory and not to the state chemical laboratory, but to the doctor's surprise they were all turned over to the chemical laboratory. From them he had word after two or three days that his samples were rather small and that the laboratory would rather have them in containers which they would supply, but they had not enough on hand just then. They also told him he would have to apply to County Health Officer A. M. Brown of Jewett City for the right to take samples.

After seeing Mr. Brown, Dr. Shahan requested City Health Officer Dr.
N. B. Lewis to take a sample of the Pierson house well on West Thames street, which was found to be free from typhoid bacilli.

Dr. Shahan also called up Dr. M. E.
Fox of Montville, requesting him to get samples in the Oxbow territory.
He also asked Dr. Thompson to secure the samples from the three wells which have just been reported on as containing typhoid bacilli. Dr. Fox has not been heard from yet.

There is another well Dr. Shahan said Wednesday evening, which ought to be tested, and that is the Max Pulasky well at East Great Plain, between the fair grounds and Pierson's, which the doctor thinks would be found contaminated.

Health Officer Thompson has notified the New London County Agricultural association and the owners of the other two wells of the danger in the use of the water. All three wells will be pumped out, an antiseptic used and the wells made pure and healthful.

There is an artesian well at the Fair Grounds from which many people also drank at fair time, but it is probable that this is not infected.

The water in the well near the Fair Grounds stables had heretofore always been considered of fine quality, and thousands of people have drunk there.
Outside of Mr. Pierson's case no other cases of sickness have been known to have resulted from its use.

NO ACTION BY COUNCIL IN SPENCER CASE

Condemned Man's Mother Visited the State House at Boston.

No action was taken Wednesday by the executive council in Massachusetts on the case of Benjamin G. Spencer, who is sentenced to die during the week beginning September 15 for the murder of Miss Martha Blackstone, a Springfield school teacher.
It was reported at the state house that Governor Foss had declined to receive Spencer's petition for commutation of the death sentence to the council. The governor, however, refused to make a statement.

Mrs. Kate P. Spencer, the mother of the condemned man, visited the state house. She was accompanied by Spencer's attorney, Richard P. Stapleton, who was given an audience by Governor Foss. Mr. Stapleton presented four affidavits which stated that Spencer had acted abnormally since his arrest and conviction.

Governor Foss and the executive council left about noon for a two days' trip through the western part of the state. It was not known whether Spencer's counsel would request a special session of the executive council next Saturday.

Mr. Stapleton presented the affidavits of George Carpenter and Frank Allen, guards at the Springfield jail, who have had Spencer in their immediate custody since the trial. These affidavits alleged that Spencer was laboring under maniacal outbursts without any apparent cause; that at times he is as simple as a child and appears to be unsuspicious to any form of reasoning. That he had been in the infirmary of the insane hospital and that he acted at times like a man without his senses.

Mr. Stapleton also presented the affidavit of Edward Jackson of Bristol, Conn., who saw Spencer while in the thru of an insane outbreak. When a boy, Jackson is a witness discovered since the date of the trial.

The affidavit of Walter Henry Harlow of Irlsburg, Vt., who knew Spencer when he was in the infirmary of the insane hospital, was also presented. He alleges in his affidavit that Spencer had a nervous breakdown and had several insane outbursts. Harlow is a trained nurse who specializes in the care of insane patients. He is also a witness discovered since the date of the trial.

Mr. Stapleton in his interview with the governor said that Spencer was a victim of circumstances and probably would never have been transferred from the insane hospital except for the disclosures which were brought about by means of conditions existing there.

Mr. Stapleton stated to the reporter that he did not expect that the governor would refer the matter to the council formally, but he did expect that the matter would be discussed informally at its meeting.

The council was in session but a short time, and, according to Council-ler Goetting, no mention whatsoever was made of the Spencer case. The governor, when seen at the end of the three day's trip, stated that there was nothing new in regard to the case. He would not answer specifically whether he intended to take up the matter later.

After the close of the session Mr.
Stapleton was presented with a special delivery letter from a prominent business man of New Haven, who does not want his name disclosed. He was a classmate of Spencer in private high school in New Haven. He wrote that he has had occasion to notice signs of insanity on frequent occasions.
He also gave the names of classmates of Spencer who are ready to disclose testimony to that effect.

Mr. Stapleton hastened to secure the affidavits of these men and will present them to the governor at the earliest possible date. Mrs. Spencer, when informed of the governor's action, bore up well and did not break down.
